So far unified command days they will not be public... I assumed average would be for whole House, so count would be for whole house... Column above level would be the adh levels... .05 for benzene, .1 for voc...

My comments:

If this is going public do we want to list location? Especially if we have an exceedence?
If we are doing multiple rooms and average per house and max per house what reading is "reading count"?

We probably need a legend at bottom spelling out; ppm = parts of substance or molecule per million parts of air or just parts per million.

The column, number of counts above level; what level? Target level or standard?

Heth, Bill and I developed this report... let me know if you have any other suggestions... I think this is close to what we will want to put on the website and after the fact give to the residents...
